HDIAC Innovation Highlight Guidelines

HDIAC publishes Innovation Highlights in its quarterly HDIAC Journal and on its website, www.hdiac.org. Innovation Highlights are high-level, short summaries of scientific and technical information about research and development advances within HDIAC's eight focus areas. They are typically 600-1,000 words and include at least one high-resolution (300 dpi) image; however, HDIAC recommends including additional images. All articles must be original content and all images must be approved, released for publication to HDIAC and credited.

Innovation Highlights must include references, fully cited at the end of the highlight in APA format. Innovation Highlights should relate to one of HDIAC's eight focus areas, have a Department of Defense application and be free of political opinion/positions. HDIAC will add the highlight and any associated references to the HDIAC collection.

In addition to publication in the HDIAC Journal, Innovation Highlights may appear on www.hdiac.org along with downloadable PDF versions. HDIAC will also feature the pieces on its Twitter and LinkedIn accounts. Authors are encouraged to visit the HDIAC website to download and display the PDF.
